BARRUNDIA'S DEATH.

A Cold-Blooded Butchery Committed Under the Stars and Stripes.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Mr. A. P. Mulligan, who was purser of the steamer Acapulco, upon which General Barrundia was butchered by officials of the Guatemalan Government, in the harbor of San Jose, Guatemala, reached this city on Monday, and he is at the Grand Central hotel. He resigned his position last week, having seen all he wanted to see of South America, and intends to study medicine in this city. Mulligan told this story of the butchery of Barrundia, of which he was an eye witness: Barrundia's stateroom opened on a slide on either side on which were six other staterooms amidships. The mast passed through the centre of the aisle. Capt. Pitt rapped on the door which was instantly opened, and Barrundai stood before them. He was six feet three inches tall, 45 years old, had black hair, and long drooping moustache. He spoke French and Spanish, and Pitt understood English only. Tonicello interpreted and Barrundai understood before the second line was repeated by the captain, and exclaimed "Bueno, bueno" (good, good). Jumping back into the stateroom he pulled two revolvers from under the bunk, and fired point blank at the men before him. They fled aft through the aisle, and came near sticking at the mast amidships, turned to the right, jumped into the stateroom and closed the door. Barrundai was at their heels firing as he ran, but missing the men he ran around on the outside and fired a bullet or two into every stateroom, hoping to hit some one by chance. Pushing forward he came unwillingly within half-a-dozen feet of five special officers, who had not gone into the cabin with Janicello and were hiding near the pilot house. All five blazed away at Barrundai, who fell dead at the first volley. The officers stood over the body and emptied their revolvers into it. The firing was done so close that Barrundai's face was burned black with powder. Nine bullets entered his head. Leaving his corpse the five officers began to search for his friends Posita and Laroque. Frown, the first mate had locked them in the state room and stood guard over the door with a repeating rifle. The murderers were cowed. The dead body was wrapped in a hammock, dragged by the heels along the deck and down the gang plank into a boat that carried it ashore. When the American naval officers on the land heard of the killing of General Barrundia they went on board the Acapulco to get particulars. They made no comments. That afternoon Commander Torriel notified Pitt that he must not sail. Two hours later six men came aboard with orders to take Barrundia's baggage ashore. They were given an invoice of baggage and spent all night copying letters and papers found in the dead man's trunks. These copies were taken ashore to implicate others in Barrundia's plots. The Acapulco sailed August 29th and Posita and Laroque got off at La Libertad, San Salvador, on the following day.

AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

A WHOLE SHIP'S CREW ATTACKED BY BERI-BERI.

The Disease Comes Aboard With a Gale—The Men Swell to Twice Their Size—Slavin and McAuliffe to Meet on Monday Night.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 17.—A hundred negroes were poisoned on Sunday last near Collerine, Dallas Co. Two died on that day and six died yesterday. The latest news from the neighborhood is to the effect that many others are dangerously ill and their deaths are honrly expected. A big revival has been going on for a week past at the negro church near Collerine, and it was decided to give a dinner on Sunday to all who attended. One course of the dinner consisted of barbacued pork. Specimens of this examined show traces of arsenic in large quantities in it. Investigation being made by the coroner, but so far he has not learned who placed the poison in the meat.

Victims of Beri-Beri.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 16.—After five years on Atlantic seas the whaling bark Petrel, Captain Edwin J. Reed, is once more in port. Captain Reed says that while off Patagonia, several months ago, a gale came from the shore during which a large quantity of fine white powder came on the ship choking those who inhaled it. The next day one of the crew was taken sick and his feet began to swell. The swelling continued till his whole body was affected. One after another of the crew was taken, till thirty-four had the disease. They swelled to almost twice the usual size, and the flesh assumed a yellowish hue. With nine men mortification set in and they died. Two others of the crew were washed overboard in a gale and were drowned. The physicians here report the epidemic as beri-beri. It is the first case on record of its having come on board a ship in a gale.

A Sound Sleeper.

WALLA WALLA, Sept. 16.—A young man named James Kellogg, who is troubled with somnambulism, arose from his bed on the second floor of the City hotel last night and jumped out of the window sixteen feet to the street. He remained where he fell, unconscious for an hour, then arose and walked into the hotel office, still asleep. When the night clerk asked him where he had been and where he came from, he did not answer. He was then shaken till he awoke, and the question was repeated, when he answered: "I am going to bed this morning." He knew nothing of what had happened, and had it not been for a sprained ankle and wrist and several severe bruises, he would have denied it all. How he escaped without a broken neck is a wonder, as he fell upon a pile of rocks.

A Sad Downfall.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Marie Williams, a few years ago one of the leading burlesque actresses in England and America, appeared to-day in the police court, charged with chronic drunkenness. She has been with the Chrystal Slipper Co., but an increasing appetite for drink compelled the management to dismiss her. She said to the magistrate that she would go at once to England to fulfill an engagement if released. The decision was reserved for a time.

The Australian Mail.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Sept. 15.—The house of representatives has approved the renewal for one year of the contract for carrying the mail between New Zealand and San Francisco.

The Lily L. Returns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—A report has been received in this city that the whaler Bounding Billow had been spoken with eight whales captured in the Japan sea. Among late arrivals yesterday from the sealing grounds was the schooner Lily L. She had been absent seven months on a sealing cruise, and reports having taken 2000 skins. This is one of the largest catches made by an outside sealer during the season.

A Long Bicycle Trip.

PORTLAND, Sept. 16.—D. M. and S. W. Rogers arrived here to-day, having been twenty weeks crossing the continent from Plymouth Rock on bicycles. They spent some time in Yellowstone Park and made a number of side trips. They met with no accidents on the trip, and say they are not tired with the journey. They crossed the Cœur d Alene lake on a boat, and came from The Dalles here by boat, but came all the rest of the way on the bicycle or on foot.

Satisfied the Code.

NEWBURN, Alr., Sept., 16.—A fatal duel occurred yesterday afternoon between Robert Turpin and Glen Duskin, prominent young men. They quarreled Saturday afternoon, but parted with the understanding that each should arm himself and shoot on sight. Yesterday afternoon they came together. Each emptied his revolver. Duskin fell mortally wounded, with four balls in his body, and shot his pistol after he had fallen to his knees. He struck Turpin in the forehead, killing him instantly.

ANOTHER PRIZE FIGHT.

Slavin and M'Auliffe to Try Their Mettle for $5,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A special cable to the World from London says: McAuliffe and Slavin will meet in the ring for their thirty round fight for $5,000 at 10 o'clock next Monday night. Betting in London to-night is 2 to 1 on Slavin. Sporting men who are inclined to back McAuliffe hesitate about doing so for fear they will not make a square fight. The Ormonde Club, which is composed mainly of men who have been kicked out of or who seceded from the Pelican Club, has no status among respectable sporting men. Neither McAuliffe nor his trainer Madden has anything to do with the arrangements for a fight. Madden has simply to take his man, who will whip Slavin if he can. Madden sends word from Wellshad-by-the-sea to-day that he feels confident McAuliffe can win. The American turns the scales at 210 pounds, which is about the weight he will [illegible] at. Slavin's backers say he is 15 pounds [illegible] much for McAuliffe. Slavin is certainly in the pink of condition, and shares the confidence of men who visited him at his training quarters. The Ormonde club expects to raise $5,000 clear money from tickets of admission to the fight. To do this they decided to charge every reporter, whether from English or American newspapers, 10 guineas to see the fight. The only courtesy extended to reporters is in not compelling them to become members of the club at large.

Initial fee to outsiders who want to attend is fixed according to the length of the individual's purse. For instance, Col. North was asked fifty guineas for a ticket, besides becoming a member of the club. North replied that he was willing to pay any reasonable price for admission, but nothing could induce him to add his name to the gang of roughs who compose the club. Richard K. Fox, who holds the deposit of the club money in case McAuliffe is interfered with, says he has no fears of foul play, and if there is any he will hang on to the check. It is possible the fight may proceed peacefully to a finish, but McAuliffe's friends in America will not be surprised if it terminates in a row.

A TOUGH SLOG.

Tommy Warren and Van Hurst Try Their Wind and Mettle.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 16.—A fight between Tommy Warren and John Van Hurst for $500 a side, came off last night at midnight in the vicinity of the state line between New York and Pennsylvania. It resulted in a draw after eleven rounds fought. It is thought the fight was fairly won by Van Hurst, but charges have been made that the affair was fixed for Warren to lose, in order that money could be made by his friends in betting against him. The fight, however, was a game and hot one up to time was called. Warren was seconded by Hite Heckham of Buffalo, and Frank Rogan of Bradford, and Van Hurst was looked after by Tom Manning of San Francisco, and Tom Clark of Philadelphia. Jack Burns of Bradford was referee. Warren weighed 119 pounds, Vanhurst 122. It was exactly 12:45 o'clock when time was called. Warren was first to lead, and landed a right-hander on his opponent's jaw, and a moment later got in another one, and the round closed with hot exchanges. In the second considerable rushing was done without effect. In the third, Warren got in a socker on the jaw with his left and another on the forehead; a clinch followed, and Warren's second claimed a foul, but was not allowed. After the men got together again Vanhurst landed a right-hander on Warren's ear, round closed in Van's favor. In fourth Warren left-handed twice in succession on Van's head, the latter rushed, and Warren got some very heavy blows, and had a right-hander over the eye, sending him over the ropes. In the fifth round Warren right-handed Van's wind. The exchange of blows in this round were about evenly divided. In the sixth round Van got in again on Warren's head, and a moment later on his wind, and then once more on his head. Hot exchanges followed, and each man landed several times. In the seventh round Warren appeared to be tiring, and Van rushed him round the ring, landing again and again. Warren was badly winded but managed to hold out until the round closed. In the eighth round Van seemed to be getting his second wind, while Warren's blows lacked force. He hit Van three times on the jaw, but did not hurt. Van used his right savagely. In the 9th round Warren's left again found Van's jaw, then Van's right got in its work, and some clinching occurred, and another foul claimed, but not allowed. In the 10th round Warren freshened somewhat, and his left rested on Van's jaw in rapid succession. Van landed twice in the wind, a clinch followed, and a claim of foul, which like others didn't go. In the 11th, Van landed a telling right hand blow on Warren's left eye, which brought the first blood. In the clinch that followed the men fell, and Warren hung to Van's neck, the latter trying to get away, but was unable to rise when time for next round was called. Warren with his seconds claimed a foul. A dispute followed and general confusion ensued. Van wanted to fight, but Warren didn't, and pulled off his gloves, though he claimed afterwards that the referee ordered him to do so. The referee then called the contest a draw amid the groans, hisses and protests of spectators. Warren was very groggy, and another round would probably have finished him. Van did not show a mark, and his second pronounced it a robbery to take the fight away from him. The fight lasted 50 minutes.

A Poet Banished From Russia—A Strike of all Labor Unions Likely to be Ordered in Sydney—80,000 Will be Effected—Sir G. Braden Powell Coming.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—The Government is likely to devise a scheme to bring back Canadians from Dakota owing to the depression which exists there. Some of last year's parliamentary grant will be spent this way.

Excelled All Previous Efforts.

QUEBEC, Sept. 17.—The banquet given last night in honor to Prince George surpassed in its splendor anything of the kind before attempted here. Among the guest were Admiral Watson, Lieut. Governor Angier, the officers of the men-of-war now in port, Government officers and cabinet ministers.

No Use for Poets.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Advices from St. Petersburg state that the grand duke Constine, who for a long time has been under a ban on account of his revolutionary tendencies, has been banished to Archangle, where he can address his poems on the rights of man to Polar bears and Samoyeds. When Constine forced himself a few days ago into the imperial presence and insisted that his majesty listen to his latest revolutionary poem, it was too much. The guard was called in and the grand duke ordered into temporary confinement. Czarowitch, too, has been ordered to take a long journey abroad for the same reason. It is reported that he caused the visit of the grand duke Alexis to the United States years ago, which was a love affair not to the taste of his imperial parents. The Czarowich will visit Bombay and other eastern cities, and have a look at that Indian empire which Russia is believed to be anxious to absorb.

A Big Strike Ordered.

SYDNEY, Sept. 16.—The labor conference considering the strike of dockmen and others has instructed various committees to order the members of all labor unions to prepare for a general strike. It is probable that all affiliated trades will be called out. This will affect 80,000 men.

Settled by a Fine.

MONTREAL, Sept. 16. The Hale-Cowles shooting case was disposed of in 15 minutes to-day by Hale withdrawing his plea of not guilty and substituting one of guilt. He was fined $500, or in default to be imprisoned until he paid. The fine was immediately paid and Hale was discharged.

Trouble in Switzerland.

BERNE, Sept. 16.—Colonel Kuenzli, Commander of the Canton of Ticino, has threatened to resign if the Bundesrath insists upon the reinstatement of the Conservatives. The consensus of opinion is that it will be impossible to restore the Conservative Government without leading to civil war.

ANGLO-PORTUGUESE TREATY.

Public Opinion in Lisbon Turned Against Britain.

LISBON, Sept. 17.—Since Rebeirror read the African agreement with England in parliament yesterday there has been great excitement. There is a feeling that Great Britain is riding rough shod over this country. Republicans accuse the king of having sold the country to England and openly incite the people to shoot down the offending cabinet ministers and free the country of traitors. The turmoil is growing and threatens most serious disorder. A portion of the military press sides with the republican threats, and go so far as to encourage an uprising of the army against the young monarch and his cabinet. The city is full of noise and riot. Englishmen are beginning to be mobbed on the streets. No man of british birth is safe if he stirs abroad, and dread pervades the community that murder may be committed by the infuriated mob, and serious international complications ensue.

A dispatch to the Daily News from Lisbon says: The Portuguese cabinet has resigned. Excitement over the English treaty continues, and there have been riotous demonstrations.

The Lisbon correspondent of the Times says: There are are various rumors current of changes in the cabinet, the latest is that only Senator Ribeirror has resigned.

SIR GEORGE BADEN POWELL.

His Mission to British Columbia—The Behring Sea Dispute.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—Sir George Baden Powell, who is en route to British Columbia, has a mission from the Imperial Government respecting the Atlantic, Newfoundland and the Behring Sea questions. He said: "I think that the Behring Sea question should not be discussed as a diplomatic treaty or history, but should be discussed upon two foundations: First, every owner should have the natural right to capture seals, and the people who kill upon the island should have an equal right with those who catch at sea. Second, both those cases should endeavor to furnish a sufficent supply so that prices will not fall, and instead of arbitrating as to a treaty they should make arrangements by which all could be assured of their share of the harvest. My idea is that England, Canada and Russia should agree to regulations fixing the number of seals slaughtered on the open sea, and also on the islands. I should like to see an international treaty established similar to that established in the North Sea by a conference five years ago. The English Government will give unqualified support to Lord Salisbury in his contention that the United States or any other government has no jurisdiction in fishery matters outside of the three-mile limit. Canada ought to lay a claim to very particular jurisdiction on the Pacific Coast, with a view of preserving the whales, black cod, sea otter and other marine products."

A LIVELY MEETING.

A Pugilistic Encounter Between Ministers in the Cortez.

LISBON, Sep. 15.—The assembling of the cortez to-day caused great excitement throughout the city, as a stormy debate on the Anglo-Portuguese treaty was expected. Shops and offices were closed, and thousands of citizens of all classes wended their way to the parliament buildings. Soon after the opening of the cortez, Riberio, minister of foreign affairs, moved the adoption of the Anglo-Portuguese treaty. He began to read various modifications which the government had adopted in order to assuage public hostility to the treaty, but before he had gone far he was silenced by the Progressist minority.

Amid tumult Major Serpo Pinto arose and shouted to the Progressists: "Hold your tongues." Upon this the Progressist president, named Brandes, assaulted Serpo Pinto and a lively pugilistic encounter ensued. The president was unable to restore order and suspended the sitting. When the cortez re-assembled Riberio introduced the English convention with certain modifications and it was referred to a committee, whereupon the Progressists moved that Lieutenant Contintro, who seized a British steamer at Chiroms, deserved the confidence of his country. The sitting was concluded in an orderly manner.

CONTRABAND POWDER.

The Armstrong Works in England in a Serious Difficulty.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Colonel Arthur Ford, who is one of the inspectors of explosives of the home office and who was appointed by the government to inquire into the explosion which occurred in October of last year on the premises of Sir William George Armstrong, inventor of the gun which bears his name, has just made his report. The works of Sir W. G. Armstrong & Co. are situated in Elswick on the Tyne, on the western outskirts of Newcastle, and the accident resulted in the loss of the lives of several men employed by the firm, as well as serious injury to others. The report of Colonel Ford brings a grave indictment against the company, which having encountered several delays in obtaining a license for the manufacture of quick firing powder, hoodwinked the governor by saying that it no longer required a license, while all the time it was wilfully and surreptitiously evading the law and, worse still, went on secretly making powder for foreign governments which would never have been permitted by the authorities.

The report goes on to say that it would be difficult to meet with a more deliberate and flagrant case of contraband manufacture, and the Armstrong company ought to be held criminally responsible for the accident. It concludes by recommending the prosecution of the company.

NO NEED FOR KICKING.

The Matter of Corded and Sealed Packages No Hardship.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A Herald's Washington despatch from Ottawa, published in to-day's papers, reports much displeasure in Canada over the recent order of the United States treasury department requiring that all goods bonded for Canada must be corded and sealed is denounced at the treasury department as sadly lacking in the element of truth. Assistant Secretary Spaulding said to-day in regard thereto, "I can't imagine why they keep getting up and giving out these rumors about new and oppressive customs regulations being put in force unless it is to give out the impression that they are being persecuted by administration of the treasury department. There has been no change in the regulations as to cording and sealing of packages for export to Canada. Packages that are imported in sealed cars do not require cording or sealing, but otherwise they do; for example, where shipment is made of a few packages, and the owner doesn't care to go to the expense of chartering a whole car, he can ship them for export to Canada by merely cording and sealing the packages. Regulations are being enforced now exactly as they have been in the past."

NIAGARA FALLS.

Progress of the Scheme to Utilize the Overflow of Water.

Prof. Coleman Sellers who was made consulting engineer of the Cataract Construction Company, some six months ago, is now in England in consultation with some of the most prominent engineers, constituting a commission to decide upon plans for utilizing the water power of Niagara Falls.

Of this international commission Sir Wm. Thomson is the president; Prof. Sellers represents America; Prof. Mascart, France; and Theo. Tourit, Switzerland.

The Cataract Construction Company has secured a large area of land (several square miles) on the Niagara river, begining a mile and a half above the falls, and all rights of way for carrying a tunnel under Niagara Village to a point below the falls.

The general plan is to construct a tunnel about 27 feet in diameter from a point below the falls to the upper limit of the secured property.

This tunnel will have lateral branches at a depth of about 100 feet from the surface, into which will be sunk numerous vertical shafts at the points where power will be required. A system of surface canals will bring the water of the river to the heads of these shafts, and its action on turbines at the lower ends of the shafts will develop the power, estimated, we believe, in the aggregate, at about 100,000 horse power. The amount of water diverted for this purpose will be a small fraction of one per cent. of that going over the falls.—Buffalo Indicator.

AN UNPROFITABLE HABIT.

Persons Addicted to Day-Dreaming Can Not Make Life Successful.

The reason why so many people find their work distasteful is because they have allowed themselves to become victims to the habit of day-dreaming, says the Minneapolis Household. It is a wonderful thing to be imaginative. The one who is so gifted finds the jolting along life's highway much easier to bear than he who stolidly endures it without the aid of any sort of an air cushion. It is wise to cultivate the imaginative faculty; but he makes a mistake who allows that faculty to expend itself in the narrow channel of day-dreaming where it must do harm to himself and benefit no one. There are few who are not more or less addicted to the habit of day-dreaming. It is sort of brain disorder for which the patient must be his own physician. Or it may be compared to the habit of opium eating, for though its effects are not so terrible, it is quite as hard to get rid of. It is particularly deplorable when it becomes fixed upon the housekeeper, for it not only tends to make her discontented with her lot, but impresses upon her the hopelessness of all endeavor to shake off the burden which she finds so wearisome. One may always know such a day-dreamer by the expression of her countenance as she goes about her work, and by the manner of her performance of it. She frets over every demand made upon her efforts, and counts as lost every effort which fails to bring as great rewards as she has convinced herself is should. Like all habits its advances are made so stealthily that the victim does not heed them; its warnings are given with a silver tongue that is pleasant to listen to, and later, though its encroaches may cause displeasure, they are so made that no complaint can be urged against them. The victim begins by wishing her work was done; there is no harm in that; she might do so even if she were in no danger of becoming a day dreamer. She then wishes she were not obliged to work at all; but what exception can be taken to that? It is surely a very natural expression of one who has so much to do. She thinks what her life might be, if she were not obliged to drudge; how much more full and beautiful it would have been had she not put herself in her present position. No doubt enters her mind that she is fitted by nature for the ideal life—the life which is somehow to be very bright and useful and full of inspiration for others, but which is also to be untrammeled by work. Such a thought is not very consistent with reason. "But if it gives her pleasure, where lies the harm?" is the very natural question. It is hard to see the danger in day dreaming even when it reaches this stage. The patient becomes intoxicated with the picture of that ideal life and of herself as the center of it. Day by day it fastens itself more securely upon her. Every annoyance causes her to lose herself in it, as the opium eater forgets his troubles while under the influence of the benumbing drug.

"Where is the harm so long as it gives her pleasure, and causes her to forget her present unhappiness?" The question is continually presenting itself.

There is no more reason and just as much nonsense in such questions when applied to the day-dreamer as when applied to the opium-eater. There is no progress, no growth, no earnest reaching out after better things, no attempt to turn the present unhappiness into a present joy—nothing but an idle gazing at an illusion.

The victim, living in her imaginary state of ease and grandeur, is suddenly called to earth by some duty more importunant than the rest. How does she bear it?

The change from this fairyland of fancy to the land of reality does not tend to make the latter more endurable. The time spent in dreaming does not qualify the dreamer to catch up with the work which she thereby neglected, or make her less impatient over the annoyances which always keep company with neglected duties.

Day-dreamers do not always have pleasant dreams. Often they pause in their work to magnify a little discomfort or trouble, until they have imagined themselves beggars or martyrs, unloved or unappreciated, as their different dispositions dictate.

An habitual day-dreamer can not make life successful, can not contribute much to the happiness of others, can not be happy. He is forever drawing comparisons between the actual and the ideal which make him dissatisfied, and dissatisfaction is contagious. Be very sure, before you bemoan your lot, that long living in air castles has not rendered you incapable of seeing your life as it really is.

A Vigorous Schoolmaster.

The old Bath (Me.) academy once had a vigorous master in the person of one Weston, who ruled in the year 1818, and the Times relates this instance of his method: "One day a boy named Russell was accused of some misdemeanor and Master Weston at once summoned a Russell boy before him. The youth protested his innocence, but the indignant instructor proceeded to give him a cowhiding that made him feel uncomfortable for a week. The next day the teacher was informed that he had made a mistake, that it was not the boy who had been flogged that was guilty, but his brother. So a brother of the first suspect was called forward and treated to the same medicine as the first. Later it transpired that neither of these was the right one. The third brother was a tall, stout fellow, much larger than the teacher, and the master declined to proceed farther, but declared that the demands of justice had been fully satisfied."

A Peculiar Request.

One of the early settlers of Oscoda County, Mich., made a peculiar request when he died a few years ago. For some time before his death his stock was being stolen, either by men or bears, and the old man's mind was affected by his loss. He asked that he be buried standing, on the east side of a tree which grew on a hill overlooking his farm. From this position he hoped to detect the thieves.

COOPS FOR CHICKENS.

This Is the Simplest and Best and Is Besides, Easily Made.

The season is at hand when coops for chickens are in demand. As success depends largely on the kind of shelter provided, we here present the illustration of a triangular coop with movable floor. This coop is recommended as among the best by H. H. Stoddard in his manual on poultry architecture, and is, moreover, easily made.

[illegible] of half-inch stuff, so that it might be [illegible] easily, a piece of wood being fastened to the roof (as in the figure) each side for a handle. The door, A, is hinged to open upward.

A small door in the rear allows the chickens to pass out that way when the door, A, is closed in cold weather. In one roof is set a large pane of glass (not shown in the cut), useful in early spring for warmth, that side being turned to the south, but in summer to the north. An opening for ventilation is made near the peak on both sides and covered with wire cloth.

The floor (Fig. 2) is made of inch boards, b b, and nailed, planed side up, to the cleats, c c. Let both ends of each cleat project three inches, and the outside edge of each two inches. This movable floor must be of such size that the coop shall rest entirely upon the ends and edge of the cleats, so that when the doors are closed all rain will be shed outside the floor. Fig. 3 shows a sect on of this form of coop with the movable floor in its place. Every few days, the door, A, being opened, stand at the rear, and, taking hold of the handles, slide the coop lengthwise of the cleats away from the floor, which may then be scraped with a hoe, fresh earth spread on, and the coop replaced by reversing the motion. This coop, it is claimed, will keep out rats and wet more effectually than any other cheap, simple affair.—N. Y. World.

THE POTATO.

Points on Its Successful Culture—How to Kill the Bugs.

The potato crop always pays for good, clean, constant cultivation, says the Western Rural. As the potato season is short, the crop should be pushed as rapidly as possible. Some people begin cultivation even before the plant appears above the ground, and it is a good plan, especially if the weeds begin to show themselves. Cultivation should be continued until the vines cover the ground, provided it is necessary to keep the land clean. Different seasons will require different degrees of cultivation, perhaps, but even in a dry season when the weeds are not as aggressive, stirring the soil and keeping it in fine condition is to assure a greater degree of moisture. So perhaps the rule laid down should be: constant cultivation. After horse cultivation is no longer practical, the weeds, if they start, should still be kept out, and it must then be done by hand. A potato field filled with weeds can not produce as good a crop of potatoes as it would if the weeds were not there. After the weeds are in blossom there is an idea that the weeds can not hurt the crop, but that cultivation will. It is a big error.

If it were not a fact that weeds must be supported by a soil that should be made to devote its entire strength to the potatoes, it would be true that it would cost more to harvest the crop, when the field would be full of weeds; and more than that and worst of all, is the seeding of the ground to weeds for the next season, and the expense of keeping them down. Whoever is an implacable enemy to a weed under all circumstances, is an excellent friend to himself and practices economical farming.

The potato beetle, of course, will be on hand for its share of the crop. Season his meal with Paris green, being careful not to make the mixture too strong. It is the bugs you want to kill and not the vines. The quantity of Paris green that will settle a bug is exceedingly small. Hence there is no necessity of a strong mixture. One of our most prominent farmers and agricultural writers has not used Paris green, however, for a number of years. He cultivates twice a week, and attaches to the end of the singletree a light brush. This brushes off the beetles ahead of the cultivator, and many of them are killed. But the Paris green diet is by all odds the most efficient of any thing. Push the growth as much as possible and sprinkle with Paris green.

Feeding Pigs.

In pig feeding there are many things to consider, says Mr. Bebout. The foods, which are used for the purpose are numerous and in many senses of the word extremely good, but in order to obtain remunerative and rapid results a feeder should make himself acquainted with their constituents and the relative quantities required for the purpose of sustaining the animals, for maintaining their growth and putting on proper proportions of fat. There are certain foods admirable in their way and when given judiciously are useful to pigs, but which without the addition of other substances would not only fail to increase their weight, however large the quantity given, but would prove insufficient to maintain a healthy condition. Almost all kinds, however (milk perhaps excepted) lack some important elements in their composition. For illustration, use corn and water alone; in a short time the pig would become inactive, feverish, skin dry and appetite bad.

Draughts not Dangerous.

The danger from draughts is largely exaggerated, says a writer in London Lancet. When a person is not overheated there is nothing so dangerous in an influx of air. It is far better to sit in a slight draught than to breathe impure air. The writer says: "I know of two men who sit in their shirt-sleeves all day under an open window during winter in a northern climate. They are never sick. When they leave the office others come on and work with the window closed. [illegible] ways complaining of colds and throat and lung troubles."

Bible Written in Shorthand.

There are many curious copies of the Bible in the various collections of Europe and America, but it is doubtful if there is a duplicate for the one belonging to Dr. R. T. Williams of London in all the collections in the world. This odd copy of Holy Writ is written in shorthand and is complete throughout. It was written by an apprentice who was suspicious of James II.'s intentions regarding Protestantism. If deprived of his printed copy, he hoped to have the little shorthand volume left.

Lilith Adam's First Wife.

According to the Jewish Talmud, Lilith, the mother of demons, was taken to wife by our first parent, Adam, prior to the appearance of Eve upon the scene. Being the legendary mother of evil spirits, one would naturally accept the story as a fact when told that she became unmanageable and tried to supersede Adam as lord of all creation. Thwarted in this, she took to the regions of the air, where, as a spectre in the guise of a beautiful woman, she lies in wait for and pounces upon defenseless children. Some ignorant European Jews still believe that the beautiful murderess inhabits the air, waiting for a chance to murder their little ones. It is said that the word "lullaby" is a corruption of the words "Lilla, abi," or "Begone, Lilith," words used as a charm by superstitious mothers of legendary times.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW, SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

THE GOOD OLD TIMES.

A Conversation Overheard by an Omaha Newspaper Man.

Coming down to Omaha the following dialogue was overheard by an Omaha Republican reporter:

"Hello, Aleck! 's that you?"

"Yes, what's left; these hard times?"

"Times is hard. Where are you livin'?"

"Up north; where are you?"

"Out west. Do you remember the good times we used to have down on the old Missouri bottom, years ago?"

"Yes, I remember the good times; wish I had 'em now."

"Feller got somethin' for somethin', then."

"Yes, money or trade."

"Le's see! What was wheat one year down there?"

"In the spring of 1868, I think, you got $2.50 (two dollars and fifty cents) a bushel for some."

"Yes, and corn was worth one dollar a bushel, eh?"

"Sometimes corn brought one dollar a bushel in those years; there was not much to sell in Nebraska, though; we imported corn."

"Don't care, I sold some at one dollar; wish I could now; them were good times."

"Things were high, then."

"Potatoes was two dollars a bushel one spring. When we went to town then we got somethin'."

"Yes, we got somethin' when we went to town, sure."

"Remember the sorrel colt you sold, me turned out such a runner?"

"Yes."

"And how we used to come up to the old store Saturday afternoons and run ponies for plugs of tobacco? There was fun those times."

"Lots of it."

"We used to go to mill forty miles, remember; but when we got there we got somethin' for our wheat, got our little old flour and feed out, and had money to go home with—dollar a bushel any way, can't do that now?"

"Wheat is down, and so are the farmers, and butter as such. Butter fifty cents a pound, take a little pail in of a mornin', and you get somethin'. Eggs, too, twenty-five and thirty cents and even forty cents a dozen often. Them was good times."

"When we make money, it's good times, and when we don't it's bad times."

"Well, what makes times, any way? There wasn't a railroad in the country then, was there?"

"No, there was not a railroad this side of the Missouri in the days you speak of."

"And times was good, and we got somethin' for all our truck, didn't we?"

"Yes, for all you had."

"And there wasn't no railroads in the country. Darn the railroads, they've busted us all up."

MARK TWAIN'S PRANKS.

A Peculiar Custom of the Humorist at His Home in Hartford.

Whenever Mark Twain has a large dinner party at his home in Hartford, says the New York Commercial Advertiser, particularly when he has any Englishmen for guests, he is in the habit, it is said, of rising at what he considers the proper moment, without any warning or explanation and beginning a set speech of a humorous kind. He usually occupies from fifteen to twenty minutes and does his best to entertain and tickle his auditors. Sometimes his efforts, always premeditated and carefully prepared, are highly successful; sometimes they are not. Humor can not be fabricated to order. But they are invariably laughed at, of course. It is an absolute requirement of common politeness that they should be, when a host demands laughter as a return for hospitality. Twain likes to be regarded as eccentric and original; and this is unquestionably original. No man that I have ever heard, of, either here or abroad, regularly makes formal speeches at his own table, especially without premonition. Twain evidently thinks he has a reputation to sustain and he sustains it in the extraordinary manner described. He might be funny, if he chose, while keeping his seat; the position would not mar his fun. But that would not be sufficiently emphatic to suit him, so he prefers to impress his guests with a full consciousness of his premeditated determination to do something worthy of the occasion. It may be that he is thus seeking to advertise himself by his postprandial harangues—a disposition with which he is sometimes credited. Doing the thing in that way is in itself so comical that he could not hope, however preposterous his jests might be, to say any thing half so good.

FRENCHMEN INDIGNANT.

They Were Not Invited to the Dinner to Prince George.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—Somewhat of a sensation has been caused among fashionable French Canadian citizens in Montreal by the outspoken articles in Le National on what the journal is pleased to call the "Aristocracy of Montreal," in connection with the reception to Prince George of Wales, by the approval given by La Patrie to the stand taken by the Nationalist organ. "The brave and honest ratepayers of Montreal," says Le National, "honored Prince George at Montreal City Hall at their own expense on Tuesday evening. As he feared there would be a crush, the receptient of this honor asked that special invitations should be issued, and that owners of these distinctive cards of dignity might kiss his royal hand. Therefore, the Municipal Council decided that only eminent citizens should be invited, and the eminence of our city was limited to five hundred. It is a strange fact that out of the 500 eminent ratepayers of Montreal, there are, according to the municipal census, only eighty-four French Canadians to face four hundred and sixteen Englishmen and Irishmen. So much for Baptiste. For the rest we would be curious to know who is the master of the ceremonies at the City Hall who decides what titles of nobility, or land or income, a citizen must possess to be inscribed as eminent on the registrar." La Patrie approves of all the Le National says and indulges in a tirade against royalty and claims that the Federal ministers lost a fine opportunity of popularising in Canada the young prince who may any day ascend the British throne.

Premier Mercier, in an interview, disclaims emphatically the charge of being lacking in courtesy to the royal princes, and states that he made strenuous efforts to be present at the banquet to the Duke of Connaught, but owing to missing a train was unavoidably absent.

A BAD CROWD.

Jealousy Makes Him Shoot His Wife and Kill Himself.

PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 16.—At 9.30 this morning, Chas. Whalley, a gripman on the cable car line, fatally shot his wife and then killed himself in a house of shame, 154 Salmon street, run by Agnes West; cause jealousy.

Whalley, his wife and a girl of the house, were at an oyster house at five this morning, and everything was apparently happy at that time. Whalley said his wife, known as Ella Winters, will be happy yet, and will have a share of money. He left the house an hour after, and sent in his resignation to the Cable company, then returned and committed the deed. Whalley's wife had been paying marked attention to a barkeeper in the city, which made Whalley insanely jealous. He shot himself through the ear, causing instant death. His wife was shot in the head and twice in the breast and can't live. The affair creates great sensation. The woman possesses a dog, and when shot exclaimed, "Charlie you have killed me, for God's sake don't kill the dog."

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Pure Lime Fruit Juice.

What is lime juice? This question is rendered necessary by the prominent attention Lime Juice is attracting as the best temperance beverage. The answer is, that it should be the juice of the lime fruit without admixture. By the "MONTSERRAT" Company alone is the lime fruit cultivated for the purpose, and great care should be taken to obtain the brand (as supplied to the British Government), in lieu of the numerous concoctions sold under the name of Lime Juice Cordials, Prepared Lime Juice, etc.

Sold by all druggists, grocers and at the leading hotels.

SEWERAGE AGAIN.

To-morrow the ratepayers of this city will vote on the question of sewerage. Need we repeat what we intimated the other day, to wit, that we hope the question will be decided affirmatively. The time is now come when the drainage of this city can no longer with safety be postponed. In many places the soil is now saturated with sewage matter to a point that is dangerous to health. Let this intensify, as must be the case unless a specific check is interposed, and we may look for typhoid fever and diphtheria to a degree little short of epidemic. It is a fact, and we believe that the medical profession will corroborate us, there should never be, under proper conditions of drainage, a case of typhoid and of diphtheria in Victoria. People in this city should only die from the effects of organic disease, accidents and old age. The climatic conditions are all favorable to health left free from the pollutions incident to thickly settled localities. There is, however, no occasion to elaborate on this subject. There is not a ratepayer in this city who is not as profoundly aware as are we, that cleanliness, besides being next to godliness, is inseparable from health. Vote, gentlemen, to-morrow as common sense dictates. In so doing you not only remove a source of danger to yourselves and your families but you enhance the value of your respective properties.

WILL ALEX. PAY THE BILL?

The Nanaimo Free Press announces that "ALEX." will foot the bills consequent to the sending of troops to Wellington. If we were "ALEX." we would do nothing of the kind. If the Messrs. DUNSMUIR were entitled to protection at all they were entitled to it free of charge. Presuming that they were in need of protection, and we have their statements and that of the Colonist to that effect, what kind of a Government have we which compels a citizen to protect himself at his own expense? The Messrs. DUNSMUIR will perhaps regard advice from the TIMES as not intended for their good. The TIMES, nevertheless, has to say, that as citizens and taxpayers they were entitled to the protection of the Government at the Government's expense, and advises them to stand by their prerogatives as citizens, and refuse to pay the bill. Their payment of the bill will not help matters, either in a political, pecuniary or moral sense. In fact, politically and morally speaking, it would only make matters worse, for then we should indubitable proof of how immensely susceptible the Government are to the influence of MAMMON. Then it might be said without exaggeration that in the presence of the almighty dollar the Government's scruples vanish as mist before the morning sun, and that their common sense goes tagging on after. The Government has nothing to gain by permitting ALEX. to pay the bill, while ALEX. on the other hand by so doing, not only pays an unjust bill, but contributes to strengthen the suspicion that money can do anything, even to the extent, if need be, of curtailing the liberties of the people.

IMITATION IN ART.

Consternation, says the Montreal Star, appears to reign in the art circles of Europe, arising from there cent discoveries that imitations of the pictures of the great French painter, COURBET, and others equally famous, are turned out by wholesale. Many of these imitations are, as works of art, of high order of excellence, as good, it is alleged, as the masters themselves could produce. Their great fault is that they are not genuine. But the worst of the discovery is that some of the most admired treasures in the galleries of Europe have come under the suspicion of being mere imitations. As a consequence the connoisseurs are sadly discredited and the world of art badly demoralized. The fact, however, seems to confirm the opinion that great merit exists unrecognized and takes to imitation in dispair. There may also be good artists who lack the creative faculty but are capable of making the most perfect imitations. This is by no means uncommon in literature. Copyists and imitators abound in all lines of literary exchange. The best of them copy the excellencies of their models, the worst copy the defects. But originality is more rare in literature than in art, hence the imitators are more numerous and more perfect in picture-painting than in poetry. But still it is a worthy thing to admire the beautiful and strive to emulate its production. This does not apply to counterfeiting bank notes.

TREATMENT OF THE BRITISH SOLDIER.

The recent insubordination in the British Army, especially that of the 2nd Battalion of Grenadiers, is the motive of Mr. Arthur V. Palmer's article in The Nineteenth Century, entitled "A Private Soldier, or the Private Soldier's Wrongs." The first wrong is misrepresentation. The bills asking for recruits promise to the ordinary linesman pay of one shilling per day, a free ration, medical conforts, lodgings, light, fuel, a complete outfit of clothing, and a free kit containing brushes, combs, razors, etc. That is the promise. Here is the reality:—Though clothes are supplied free (at yearly intervals), the soldier must pay the tailor for the alterations necessary to make them fit. He has to pay out of his own earnings for his groceries, potatoes, tea, coffee, sugar, milk, salt and pepper, and for his plate and basin; for the black-lead with which he cleans the iron trestles of the barrack room forms and the coal boxes, and the soap which he uses in cleaning the floor, and for various other little expenses. In Gibraltar the soldiers have to pay even for their own drinking water. Then the rations pass through too many hands before reaching the consumer, and there are various ways of cheating in weight and otherwise misappropriating victuals. The clothing of infantry regiments is renewed every year, that of cavalry regiments every two years. The underclothing must be kept up at the soldier's own expense; for the two shirts and the three pair of socks which he gets on joining are expected to last him seven years. Two shirts would not last seven years even if they were washed in the manner indicated by Lord Wolseley: "It should be turned inside out, hung up in the sun to dry, then brushed with a stiff brush and put on again as clean." In the Highland regiments the Government plays a practical joke upon the soldiers with some profit to itself. Only five yards of tartan yearly are allowed for the kilt. This quantity is insufficient for a large man, who must buy another two yards out of his own pay or else suffer reprimand and punishment for being "improperly dressed on parade." The Glengary bonnet when issued has a leather binding round the bottom; in two regiments this must be taken off and replaced by silk, at a cast of a shilling to the soldier. The promise of "hospital comforts free" is evaded by a provision that seven pence a day must be stopped from the pay of non-commissioned officers and men whose sickness is due to any neglect of their own; and it is not a difficult matter to trump up a charge of neglect. From these facts one can readily believe Mr. Palmer's assertion that "already there is a strong feeling in the country against soldiering, not because of the work, but because it has gone abroad that the private soldier is unjustly treated and indeed duped from the first day he enters the barracks as a recruit till he leaves it as a more or less experienced soldier." The lot of the soldier, however, is not as bad in barracks as on board the troopships. "In plain English, while on board these floating styes he is treated more like a pig than a human being." The men are cruelly crowded, five being jammed into a space large enough for only three. The food is so bad that the men throw half of it overboard; the pork is "filthy stuff, such as would not be offered to the most wretched mendicant." The sleeping accommodation is wretched, only half the men being provided with hammocks. On the whole, Mr. Palmer proves that the men who fight England's battles are very badly and meanly treated. He has been a sergeant in the 79th Highlanders and has had personal experience of most of the things he writes of, and it will be scarcely possible for the authorities to ignore the grievance to which he has called attention so clearly and so publicly. Some of the old fogies will doubtless be horrified at the idea of a non-commissioned officer criticising his former superiors in this fearless way, but most people will be glad that light has been thrown upon this scene of neglect, fraud and injustice.

The above which we clip from the Globe only makes us wonder that the British army remains intact. There was a time when this kind of treatment did not hurt the morale of the soldier because he knew no better. But he does know better now. The common school is getting in its deadly work and as the result men demand to be treated like men. Reform must come in the British army or there will be more insubordination and as in the American army desertions will multiply.

A NOTE OF WARNING.

"We have endured the unneighborly conduct of the Canadian Government for seven years without retaliation of any kind, but it cannot go on forever. Canada has to choose in its next election between principles and methods that are intended to serve British Imperial interests and principles and methods to serve Canada as an American country. The United States has practically decided upon a trade policy which will be continental in its opportunities. Canada can have her share in this policy if she wants to. But she cannot expect longer to obtain the benefit of American markets and American customs regulations while pursuing in trade and in politics a policy distinctly hostile to American interests."

The above from the New York Tribune pretty fairly represents the temper of the wing of the Republican party headed by REED and sundry other politicians of his ilk. There is this comfort about it, however, these men have about reached the end of their rope. The endorsement of REED in Maine signifies nothing. The people of the United States have practically reached the conclusion that the commercial isolation foreshadowed by the MCKINLEY Bill is to the interest of nobody but a handful of manufacturers. We do not speak thus, however, in extenuation of the gang who now control the policy of Canada. As creatures of the manufacturers they are as deep in the mud as REED and his co-partners are in the mire.

With the free trade party in the ascendant in the United States it is doubtful whether Canada would derive any advantages, the Tory gang at the helm of Canadian affairs as is the case at present. The proposition for reciprocity must first come from Canada, and for this reason: The Americans irrespective of party regard themselves as holding the winning hand. They take the position that while the United States can get along without Canada, Canada cannot well get along without the United States. They hold that the proportion of profit growing out of the volume of trade that would eventuate of reciprocal trade relations would be with Canada. Can we, bearing this in mind, together with the fact that Canadian trade is not indispensable to the States, expect from the States the first overtures for this trade? As a plain business proposition, irrespective of political considerations we can not. What difference then will it make to Canada which party is in power unless Ottawa is prepared to make the first overtures toward reciprocity. The upshot of the MCKINLEY bill will be, in our estimation, that the United States will leave the bars down to reciprocity. Canada however, need not expect that the United States will go any further. The overtures for reciprocity must first come from Canada, because she is deepest interested. Will Sir JOHN make these overtures?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The ecclesiastical authorities at Ottawa have received advices that Rome will shortly pronounce an opinion on hypnotism, whose effects are being discussed by physicists throughout the world.

The estimated reduction in Canadian exports to the United States after the passage of the MCKINLEY bill is $10,000,000 and the imports will be effected to the same extent. This, however, is only expected to last until new avenues for the surplus products are discovered. In this connection it is understood that the Dominion Government will shortly announce the abolition of the export duty on pine and spruce logs going to the United States in order to meet alternatively the clause in the MCKINLEY bill regarding Canadian sawn lumber the duty on which will consequently be reduced one half.

In regard to the transmission of journalistic mail matter from England, English publishers make the mistake of mailing on Thursday, which makes its arrival at Victoria three days later than it need be. Punch, Truth, The World and the Canadian Gazette, if mailed prior to Thursday, which we understand might be done as well as not, would come by the way of New York and hence arrive here three days sooner than is now the case. The trouble lies with the Allan line of steamers, which are slower than the New York lines. In these days when the value of a publication depends largely upon the celerity with which it is delivered to the reader, a matter of three days, delay in point of delivery is important and should be rectified. We may remark also in this connection that all letters from England intended for this city should be addressed via New York. They, too, would arrive three days earlier.

RECONSTRUCTED BY ONIONS.

Unbounded Enthusiasm Among Some Confederate Prisoners.

In the spring of 1864 the writer of this, having been a prisoner of war, was released on parole and was sent to Johnson's Island, then a depot for Confederate prisoners of war, until exchanged, which did not take place until the following August, says the Lancashire Inquirer. During the early summer the prisoners were fed mainly on fresh and salt meats, beans, rice and some potatoes.

Early in July the post surgeon recommended that they be supplied with a ration of onions, as a preventive against scurvy and diseases of that character, and accordingly General Hill, who was in command, issued an order to that effect. Accordingly a large supply of onions was purchased by the commissary, and on their arrival were issued to the prisoners.

The unbounded delight with which this ration was received by the prisoners will ever be a pleasant memory to those who witnessed it.

More than a quarter of a century has intervened, and yet it seems as though it might have happened but yesterday. They made the most uproarious demonstrations, cheering and shouting, and in every way possible exhibited their satisfaction and gratitude.

One enthusiastic confederate officer mounted the steps of one of the prisoners' huts and made a stump speech, in which he declared his purpose to vote for Abe Lincoln if he should be fortunate enough to be at liberty when the election took place. On a platform of onions he was for Old Abe first, last and all the time.

CHEAP POSTAGE RATES.

The Champion of the System in This City—His Scheme.

Among the passengers by the steamer Yosemite last night was J. Henniker Heaton, M. P., one of the members of the syndicate formed to construct a cable between British Columbia and the Australian colonies. The syndicate is composed of a half-dozen millionaires, and there is every probability of the work being carried through.

Mr. Heaton is also travelling in the interests of his pet scheme, and one too, in which he is endorsed by nearly everybody, namely the cheapening of ocean postage. He thinks that a universal postage should be adopted all over the world. In a hurried interview with a TIMES reporter to-day, he gave the following brief outline of his ideas.

"My scheme is to convey a letter weighing half an ounce from any place in the British Empire to any other place in it, or to the United States of America, for one penny.

Penny postage exists at the present moment in the United Kingdom, in Canada, in the United States (America), in the Cape of Good Hope, in Natal (Africa), and in part of Australia, and halfpenny postage throughout India. All we require is, that the links should be completed by ocean penny postage between these countries.

I estimate the initial cost to England at only £60,000 a year.

Not an extra train or steamship would have to be provided to carry out this reform, for the requisite machinery is now in full operation.

A letter can be carried to the Antipodes at a profit for one penny, and Sir Rowland Hill declared that a farthing would compensate the shipowner.

The postage of a letter from New York to Alaska, 5000 miles, is one penny. Surely if it pays the American Government to convey a letter by this expensive railway route, it should be possible to send one by sea from Liverpool to New York, only 3000 miles, for one penny.

I can send a newspaper weighing four ounces to Australia for one penny postage, but a letter of the same weight, by the same route, and in the same steamer, costs 4s.

France, Germany and Russia charge 50 per cent. less than we do for postage to forty of our British Colonies and possessions. France, with a few poor colonial dependencies, expends more than a million sterling, viz., 26,060,000 francs, on her mail steamship subventions; while England, with immense and wealthy colonies and dependencies, only expends £640,000 per annum. Germany also expends proportionately a larger sum than England.

It is perfectly well known that the object of these foreign steamship subventions and low rates of postage is to cut out British trade with British possessions. Other countries recognize that cheap postage means enormously increased business and improved social relations.

I put forward a special plea on behalf of the 350,000 enigrants who leave our shores every year, never to return. As showing the nature and intensity of their feelings towards the "old folks at home," I may mention that in 1888 600,000 emigrants sent £2,500,000 to England, in small orders from 10s. to £5 in value, for their friends and relatives in this country.

The Board of Trade embodied in its emigration returns for 1886 figures showing that between 1848 and 1886 no less than £32,394,500 were remitted by settlers in the United States and British North America to their friends in Great Britain and Ireland.

England, with her huge postal profit of £4,000,000, should lead the way in this matter. The state, in my opinion, should not make a profit out of the postoffice. But I do not insist on this. I merely propose that the Treasury should take this year from the postoffice exactly the surplus of last year, and that all sums over and above that surplus should be devoted to cheapening, extending and facilitating postal and telegraphic intercourse with all parts of the Empire.

The amount expended on a single warship would be sufficient to pay for establishing ocean penny postage for three years. Already a great example has been set us. Throughout the wide Australian continent newspapers are now conveyed and delivered free. At present, as I wish to establish my facts beyond all possible question, I am asking for a select committee, or Royal Commission to inquire into the feasibility and cost of establishing ocean penny postage."

Mr. Heaton has since his departure from England, visited the United States and there interviewed Postmaster General Wanamaker in reference to a reduction of the rate on letters from New York to London from five cents to two cents, or a penny. Mr. Wanamaker received Mr. Heaton's suggestions most cordially, and promised that they should receive the fullest consideration of the department. Mr. Heaton hopes to interest all concerned in his ideas, and there is every possibility that in a few years, and solely by his efforts, universal postage will be a known fact.

Mr. J. Henniker Heaton is a member of the English House of Commons, representing the cathedral town of Canterbury, his native place. For over twenty years he resided in New South Wales, where he has large properties, and where he is universally respected by reason of the great changes his perseverance has already wrought in postage rates. Although there is nothing of the effete aristocracy about Mr. Heaton, he is heir to the title of Lord Warrane. Broad shouldered, full bearded, heavily built, genial and smiling, but with a determined and vigorous appearance, Mr. Heaton looks more like a typical rancher from Australia than he does like a titled nobleman. His kindly welcome to all whom he meets proves his good nature, and puts a stranger at ease, while his concise remarks and easy flowing speech make him readily understood, the subject matter in hand being grasped at once. It is seen in a moment that the champion of penny postage is working with all his might to attain his views.

Mr. Heaton speaks in high terms of his trip over the C. P. R., and of the beautiful appearance of Victoria, he also expressing surprise at the metropolitan appearance of the latter. This afternoon, in company with Mr. T. R. Smith, he drove to Esquimalt, and around the city. He takes to-night's boat away, but says he shall carry with him a good opinion of the city named after our sovereign.

Mark Twain's Crustiness.

Mark Twain's success in life seems to have made him crusty and sour. Years ago, when he was struggling for fame and fortune on the Pacific coast, those who knew him said he was warm-hearted and cordial. But he certainly is far from that now. I saw him on the street awhile ago, dressed in a dark business suit. He has an attractive face, a splendid head, set upon a pair of strong shoulders. His eyes are clear, and his mouth denotes great firmness. His hair is silvering gradually, although there is abundance of it. His moustache is reddish, and his eyebrows are heavy. Mr. Clemens lives in style in Hartford, Conn. His home is on Farmington avenue. It is a house luxuriously furnished and filled with rare pictures and books. The occupant of the house adjoining is Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, and not far away is the home of Charles Dudley Warner. Mr. Clemens never talks about his books except to those whom he knows intimately. But there is one topic that he is willing to discuss at any time, and that is international copyright. In fact, it may be said that he is a crank on the subject. His "Innocents Abroad," the most successful of all his literary ventures, has a steady sale, and his fortune is estimated by those who know him to be considerably over $2,000,000. Sometimes fun pays.

The bell of the new lighthouse at the Narrows, Burrard Inlet, is in good working order now and the light flashes across the water with brilliancy.

Talk of building a fast steamer for the Victoria-Westminster route by parties in the latter city is indulged in. It is said there is a deal of money behind the scheme.

Harbor Master Thain of Vancouver has prepared a number of blue prints for the Narrows and vicinity, showing the position of the shoal found by him and Captain Lewis a week ago, and on which the Parthia touched on an outgoing trip in June last. The shoal is midway in the stream, almost on a line between the Brockton Point lighthouse and the first beacon near the northern shore. The soundings show four fathoms at dead low water.

At a meeting of the manufacturers of harvesting binders, held at Toronto on the 12th inst., at which the leading firms of Ontario are represented, the general condition of business was discussed and it was the general consensus of opinion that the stagnation is due to over production. It was decided to organize an association at a future meeting.

There is a lively struggle on the tapis in Montreal between Joseph Tasse, the well-known editor of La Minerve, and Berthaume, the lessee of the paper. It is said that Mercier and the Nationalists are trying to get hold of the old Conservative paper. Tasse says in reference to the matter it is quite true that serious difficulty has arisen between Berthaume and myself, but it is not true that I have given up the editorship of La Minerve. The trouble will be taken before the courts.

A new lottery scheme is occupying the attention of the police magistrate in Toronto. It is gotten up by fake tailors and jewellers, into which subscribers pay $1 a week. There is a drawing every week and the successful number takes a suit of clothes or a watch away and then stops paying the subscription. Henry A. Giles, a jeweler, was fined lately $20 and costs for breach of the Lottery act. Several similar charges against jewelers and tailors were remanded.

The St. Clair tunnel was visited lately by Lord Stanley, accompanied by Sir Henry Tyler, Sir Joseph Hickson and others. After viewing the outside work, the party entered the tunnel on the Canadian side and were taken by lorries through the tunnel to the compressed air apartment, which they passed through and came out of the tunnel on the American side. Lord Stanley expressed himself in admiration of the wonderful piece of engineering skill as shown in the construction of the tunnel.

The first sale of iron lands on the Atikokan range was consummated at Port Arthur, on the 12th inst. The property sold consisted of three mining locations of eighty acres each, covering one and one-half miles on the range situated, on the Atikokan river. The sale was made by Thomas Marks & Co., who are interested in property, the purchaser being W. H. Pattison, of Superior, Wisconsin, one of the chief owners of the F. G. Chandler mine on the Vermilion range. The consideration is $15,000 spot cash. It is said that the outcroppings of ore on this property assay from 68 to 69 per cent. metallic iron and that it is Bessemer ore.

RIGHTS OF BRITISH VESSELS.

Have American Courts Jurisdiction Over Them?

The Port Townsend Call says: The captain of the British ship, F. B. Taylor, now at Tacoma, has had an experience lately similar to that of several English captains on the Sound. His vessel was not libelled but came very near being so through his refusing to pay off one of his crew in an American port.

In Philadelphia he signed one Thomas Winters, as a second officer, for a voyage to Japan and return to British ports by way of the United States, before a British consul. Arriving at Tacoma, Winters demanded his discharge from the vessel and the pay due him. Captain Hurlburt refused the payment or discharge, claiming that under British maritime law he was compelled to pay and discharge at a British consulate, where the officer or seamen discharged must sign his release from the articles. He would release Winters at Port Townsend, he said. But Winters procured the services of a good lawyer and demanded his pay on pain of libeling the vessel. Captain Hurlburt had learned the history of the Craigend, and other English vessels that have been libelled here and thinking discretion the better part of valor, paid the man and allowed him to go. He does not, however, admit that the federal courts have any jurisdiction over English vessels and said:

"I assert that the United States courts have no more jurisdiction over my vessel so long as she floats the British flag than they have over the land under the British crown. The British consul is the only person to whom a sailor articled to a British ship may appeal for redress of any wrong. In this instance there was no wrong nor was any wrong alleged. The man simply wanted to break his contract with me and in view of the precedents here established I know your courts would uphold him in his demand, and rather than have the trouble I paid him. I did so at my own peril, without right or the sanction of the British maritime law. Similar cases have been taken to the higher courts from Boston and New York and have been decided in favor of the position I take.

"Now suppose I had refused to pay this man and your courts had libeled this ship. I should have refused to allow the officers of the court to enter my vessel, would have raised the British flag, and had they forcibly entered her I would have left the ship to them and their peril, for it would constitute an insult to the British flag and a violation of international law. What would you say of an American officer who violently entered a house on British soil, arrested a British subject, or even an American, for a crime committed on British territory? What would you say of an American court that would attempt to try and convict a prisoner so seized? It is a parallel case. No court of law has jurisdiction over a British vessel save a maritime court called and ordered by a British consul, and when a sailor signs with the master of a British vessel he signs under British laws before a British consul.

"A similar case was tried at Liverpool when the authorities there tried to arrest an American mate for murder committed on the vessel and try him under British law. The American flag was at the masthead, but the officers entered the vessel and arrested their man. It created considerable stir and came near leading to international complications. The man was released and allowed to return to his vessel, forever secure from English interference. Just so in this instance. I believe, if I cared to put the course into practice that I have outlined, I could make your federal officers very sick before I got through with them.

"It's just such things as these that have incited the owners of Nova Scotian vessels to forbid their ships to land at Portland, and it may end that way at Tacoma unless the authorities are more reasonable and considerate of our rights.

Voting on the Sewerage By-law to-morrow.

A lady who owes a considerable portion of her charms to art was much annoyed the other day, says the Birmingham Mail, on receiving a dozen of her carefully retouched cartes from her photographer to read on the back of each photograph the words: "The original of this portrait is carefully preserved. She has not yet recovered from this unexpected "back" thrust.

The civilization of Africa is beginning in earnest. A Belgian shipping paper reports that a steamer bound for the west (not the east) coast of Africa, had on board 14 missionaries, 460 tons of gunpowder, 11 cases of gin, and 10,000 casks of rum. Every taste of the benighted negroes is thus provided for, and the mixed cargo strikingly illustrates the mixed motives of the civilized world in its dealings with them.

A BIT OF HISTORY.

EVENTFUL CAREER OF PEGGY O'NEIL AND HER HUSBANDS.

A Story From Away Back in the '20's—A Woman of Such Beauty and Influence That She Caused the Breaking up of Jackson's Cabinet.

Henry Inman in Kansas City Star.—Away back in the '20's Mr. Jack Percival commanded a vessel in the Mediterranean squadron, and on his ship was enacted a tragedy that was the beginning of a romantic piece of United States history. It made a terrible commotion at the time, but it is new to this generation.

When, in the year 1800, Washington was selected as the capital of the nation, the site of the city was all forest and creek, and almost uninhabitable. Nearly all of the officers of the government, most of the senators and members of the house and the civil employes, boarded in a hotel in Georgetown kept by an Irishman named O'Neil, who is said to have been a near relation of the famous "Paddy" O'Neil, the body servant of General Jackson. Among the attractions of the hotel was the landlord's brisk and bouncing daughter, "Peggy," a famous beauty of the true Milesian type, plump, ruddy, auburn haired, blue eyes, and brimming over with health and spirits. From among her many admirers she finally married one of the Timberlakes, of the old Virginia family of that name. He was a paymaster in the navy, and shortly after their marriage he was ordered on a cruise to the Mediterranean on a vessel commanded by "Mad Jack."

When the squadron had been absent about a year, a mail was received from home while the ship was lying in the harbor of Port Mahon, Island of Minorca. As soon as the letters had been distributed Timberlake retired to his cabin, and a short time afterward his shipmates were startled by the report of a pistol. Timberlake was found in his room dead, with a bullet hole through his forehead. In his hand was a letter from a friend, in which he was warned that he should be in Washington to defend his personal honor. Among other names mentioned in connection with Mrs Timberlake's was that of General Eaton, who afterward became President Jackson's secretary of war.

In consequence of Timberlake's suicide, the ship was left without a paymaster, and a young lieutenant named Randolph of Virginia, was appointed by "Mad Jack" to do the work. Randolph protested that he was a lieutenant of the line and knew the art of navigation, but not of bookkeeping or the mystery of accounts. Percival, however, insisted that he was the only man available, and gave him characteristic instructions. "Whenever you get a paper signed," said he, "stick it in a keg, and when it gets filled put in the bung; then seal it up and send it to the navy department. Let them do the figuring for you."

The first lieutenant of the vessel, acting under Percival's orders, took all the effects to be found in Timberlake's cabin and all the contents of the paymaster's iron chest, both paper and specie, packed and sealed them carefully and sent them to Timberlake's widow in Georgetown. No inventory of Timberlake's possessions was taken at the time, but in a subsequent statement the first lieutenant declared that there was a bag of specie included among the effects; whether it contained gold or silver he was unable to state.

The cruise lasted about eighteen months longer. Upon arriving in the United States Acting Paymaster Randolph, when the kegs were emptied and his accounts made up, was declared to be short $8,000. Randolph demanded a court of inquiry, which, after a thorough examination of all his accounts, honorably acquitted him, although the shortage of $8,000 still remained a mystery. The investigation by the court of inquiry lasted three months, and as soon as its decision was given out, General Eaton laid the facts of the case before President Jackson, claiming that the decision reflected upon Timberlake and on his widow, formerly Peggy O'Neil, to whom he was then engaged to be married. President Jackson ordered Randolph to be court martialed for irregularity and defalcation in his accounts. The court, after sitting for months on the case, finally acquitted Randolph on the ground that he never received the specie, it having been packed and sealed and sent to Mrs. Timberlake, though it could not be proved that the widow had ever received it.

President Jackson refused to approve the proceedings of the court martial, and a violent disregard of his prerogative (the first time such a violent use had ever been made of it probably), dismissed Randolph from the navy. The keen injustice so affected Randolph that when he met President Jackson a short time afterward on board a boat, plying between Washington and Alexandria, he assaulted the President by attempting to pull his nose. This turned the tide of public opinion, formerly loud in Randolph's favor, strongly against him. In the excitement Randolph was hurried off the boat by friends and his whereabouts kept concealed for years.

Shortly after these occurrences Peggy married General Eaton, but society refused to receive her. The family of John C. Calhoun, who was then Secretary of State and the families of the other cabinet officers also declined to meet her. The heads of the bureaus all resigned except Martin Van Buren, and thus Mrs. Eaton was the cause of actually breaking up the cabinet. Van Buren was the only one who recognized her; the wily old fox of Kinderhook was himself a widower, and perhaps did not care for the demands of society.

From this time began the rise of Frank Blair and Amos Kendall, who were substituted in the cabinet for those who had resigned on account of Mrs. Eaton. General Eaton immediately began to kick up a fuss by challenging people right and left, but could get no one to meet him on "the field of honor." President Jackson, however, publicly received Mrs. Eaton at the White House, where she was favored to the exclusion of other society ladies.

General Eaton did not live long after his marriage, and died leaving his wife a very wealthy woman—the rise in Washington real estate, of which he was an extensive owner, having made him an immense amount of money. He left only one child, a girl, who, upon arriving at maturity, married a lieutenant of the navy named Randolph, a Virginian and a near relative of the man who had been dismissed from the navy for an alleged defalcation. This Lieutenant Randolph died in 1883, leaving two grown daughters, who were great belles in Washington society. At this time Mrs. Eaton was a very wealthy widow with two granddaughters; she was in an assured social position, all the gossip and rumor concerning her conduct were forgotten, she was very vivacious and well preserved and altogether a delightful and charming old lady.

About this date an Italian, a dancing master or a musician, I don't know which, made his appearance in Washington. He was an adventurer of the most decided type. He courted one of the granddaughters and was supposed to be engaged to her, when suddenly, to the great surprise of society, Mrs. Eaton eloped with the Italian and was married to him in Philadelphia. The union was a short and unhappy one; the Italian adventurer managed to get possession of most all of Mrs. Eaton's property and the old lady returned to Washington cast down, but not disheartened. Shortly after her arrival in the capital city she discovered that coincident with the disappearance of her third husband one of her granddaughters had also disappeared, to run away, as afterwards developed, to Italy with the Italian and most of her grandmother's money!

The old lady resided in Washington to the day of her death, not many year's ago, a brilliant light in society to the end, although pitied for her last unfortunate escapade.

Beautiful Women.

The magical efforts of Wisdom's Robertine as a beautifer and preserver of the complexion have been attested by thousands of leading ladies of society and the stage. It is the only article ever discovered which gives a natural and beautiful tint to the complexion, removing tan, sunburn, freckles and all roughness of the face and arms, leaving the skin soft, smooth and velvety. All remarks on its delightfuly cooling and refreshing properties, a distinction not found in any other similar article known. D. E. Campbell, agent.

A curious wager, with fatal results, was recently decided at Siepring, in Bavaria (says Vanity Fair). A notorious'y strong man, named Freytag, bet that a horse could not move him from the door of his house. The horse was brought, and Freytag put his hands and feet against the door posts, while Stern, the man who whom the bet had been made, fixed a rope round Freytag's neck. At the first pull the rope broke. A new rope having been brought, Stern plied his whip with all his might, when Freytag gave a scream, and, letting go, was dragged along for some yards. His neck was broken.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

SEWERAGE.

If You Are In Favor of It, Vote For the By-law.

[illegible] the expenditure of $300,000 on the construction of sewers, will take place to-morrow, Thursday, 18th of September, at the following places: At Burnes' Building, Bastion Square, for Yates Street Ward; at the City Hall, for Johnson Street Ward, and at the Hook and Ladder House, Government Street, for James Bay Ward. Polls will be open between the hours of 8 a. m. and 4 p.m. Those qualified to vote for or against the by-law are the owners of real estate who were on the list at the election in January last. The feeling of the real estate owners in undoubtedly in favor of the by-law, but it frequently happens that many who are in favor of a measure do not take the trouble to record their votes. If the people of Victoria want the city's sanitary condition improved, to-morrow will be the time to express that opinion. If they want it to remain as at present for the next half dozen years, they will vote against the by-law. Those who are in favor of sewerage, and remain away from the polls, are practically opposing their own wishes.

The money to be voted will be expended by three commissioners—Messrs. Earle, Turner and Teague—whose names are a guarantee that the money will be expended to the best possible advantage.

From High Latitudes.

A party of ten Frenchmen—Mons. Darnault, Rouge, Goutard, Girardst, Raveneau, Guence, Gayot, C. Houplieu, Leger and Chavien—members of the Club Alpine Francais, arrived from the east last night. They return on Thursday.

Art Exhibition.

A meeting of the B.C. Art association was held last evening to make final arrangements for their exhibition, to be held on the 25th inst. The association have already 300 pictures, mostly local, to exhibit, and the prospects for a successful exhibition are bright.

Warden John Reinstated.

A few weeks ago Warden John, of the provincial jail, was suspended by the Attorney-General on account of some complaint made by a man named Healy and an Indian woman, both of whom are ex-convicts. An investigation took place before Mr. Justice Walkem a few days after the suspension, and yesterday his lordship gave his decision which completely exonerates Mr. John, and proves the ex-convicts complaints to be groundless. Mr. John has been reinstated.

The S. & O. Railway Magnates.

The gentlemen connected with the Shuswap and Okanagon Railway, who have been in the city for a few days transacting business with the government in respect to the issue of the bonds authorized by the legislature, will leave for the east on Thursday morning. The party consists of Capt. Larkin, Hector Cameron, Q.C., Geo. Reilly, and W. Heaton Armstrong, a London banker. The bonds of the company, guaranteed by the province, have been purchased by the banking firm of which Mr. Armstrong is a member, and the transfer, it is understood, has been arranged for. On the way east the party will take a run over the line of the S. & O. Railway.

A Presentation.

Mr. Editor, will you kindly give me space for the following in your valuable paper?

Presentation and address to Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Robertson on their leaving Agassiz for their early home in Glengarry, by their friends at Agassiz:

MR. AND MRS. DUNCAN ROBERTSON, Dear Friends—You will be surprised at the liberty so many of us have taken by gathering at your house this evening without any previous intimation of our intention to do so. We intend, however, to surprise you, feeling that we should be none the less welcome, and that it might in some measure add to our enjoyment. We can assure you that we have come to spend a few hours with you in a friendly social manner; and we trust you will never have cause to regret the night of the 10th of September when your friends and neighbors at Agassiz invaded your house. We view with sincere regret the prospect of parting with you. We are very sorry to have you leave this settlement. We feel that we can ill afford to lose you in more ways than one, as we review the struggles, the work and worry connected with the settlement in a new country. We wish to say respecting you, that we have always found you a public spirited settler, a man of sterling honesty in your dealings with us, and a most kind and obliging neighbor. No less friendly, no less worthy of our respect has your wife proved herself to be, and in token of our friendly feelings and esteem towards you both, we beg you, Mr. Robertson, to be pleased to accept this gold-headed cane, and you, Mrs. Robertson, this silver cake dish with our best and warmest wishes for your future happiness and success. If it should be your lot in some future day to return to this district, we assure you that you will receive from us a most cordial welcome. And now in saying good-bye, we hope that if we may never meet again on earth, we may all discharge the various duties devolving upon us in such a manner that we may meet in heaven at last.

Signed in behalf of your friends at Agassiz by R. L. ASHTON,
H. W. HOLLEY,
JAS. A. MCDONALD.

After the presentation a very pleasant and enjoyable evening was spent.

Yours, etc., JAS. A. MCDONALD.

AGASSIZ, 15th Sept., 1890.

Only an Accident.

Early yesterday morning a man slightly under the influence of liquor let a pistol drop on the sidewalk on Broad street which caused it to explode. This led to a report that a fight had taken place in which a pistol took a prominent part.

Now Ready.

To-day there arrived the first consignment of fall goods for gentlemen's wear, comprising a well selected stock of Scotch, French, and German goods, in the latest patterns, and will be made up at reasonable figures, in a first class manner, by J. Mc. Callum, 43 Fort street. *

Sold Out His Share.

The senior partner of the firm of J. P. Matthews & Co. has sold out his interest in the growing business to Mr. A. M. Bannerman. This course has been made necessary by reason of Mr. Matthews' ill health, he not being able to stand the dampness of the sea air. After the transfer is completed, Mr. Matthews will either go east or south, to get more into a mountainous country.

Not Badly Injured.

Capt. George who pilots the steamer Elder to Alaska, and who was on board that steamer on her last trip, denies that the steamer was badly injured, and that she would have sank if she had any distance to go. Only one plate was cracked he says which was thoroughly repaired and the steamer is now ready to run without being docked. Over a thousand tons of freight was brought down from Alaska.

Mere Sites.

Dr. Wetham, of Vancouver, will donate 40 acres in district lot 186, adjoining the Hastings townsite, for university purposes. Mr. W. C. Hargreaves, of Vancouver, offers 50 acres in district lot 74 for a site. This land is situated about six miles from Vancouver and the Hastings road, between Vancouver and New Westminster, runs through the property. Nanaimo and New Westminster have still to be heard from.

A Mistake in Names.

The other day day it was announced that a telegram had been received here from Ross & Hemlett of San Francisco to the effect that the schooner Lily had been reported all right with 1800 skins. This morning Mr. Barns, owner of the vessel received another dispatch from Ross & Hewlett, stating that a mistake had been made in the names, and that it was not the Lilly, but the Lilly L, which had been spoken by a San Francisco schooner. The Lily has not been reported since spoken by the Ollie J. Algar on the first of August, but she will no doubt turn up all safe soon.

The Epworth League.

A meeting of the young people of the Methodist churches was held at the parsonage, Quadra street, last evening for the purpose of forming a branch of the Epworth League. After Rev. C. Watson, the chairman, had explained the object of the meeting and also the league, a local branch was formed and the following officers elected: President, J. H. Baker; first vice-president, D. Ballentyne; secretary, H. Spring; treasurer, Miss Andrews. A committee was formed to draft by-laws, and to report on the adaptability of the constitution as submitted to the conditions which obtain in this city.

A Coincidence.

The fight at present going on between two Chinese societies, which is being ventilated in the police court brings to mind a similar case that took place here about seven years ago. During progress of that case some very suspicious circumstances took place that are making the chief of the the fire department and the police keep their eyes open for similar things during the present rivalry. One of the things that occurred was the burning of the north side of Cormorant street one week and then the burning of the other side just a week later. A Chinawoman was also murdered during the progress of the case, so it can be seen that a fight among the Chinese citizens is likely to assume serious aspects.

To-night's Performance.

The Victoria theatre should be crowded to overflowing this evening, not only to see a first class show but also for the purpose of helping out the orphan homes of Victoria. The entertainment will no doubt be a very amusing one, as Jack tar is always ready to make his audience amuse themselves no matter what it costs him in work. The Warspite band will be in attendance by special permission of Admiral Hotham, and will be, as it always is, well appreciated by the musical ladies and gentlemen present. The entertainment is to be given under the patronage of Admiral Hotham, and is sure to draw a very large and fashionable audience. The sailors have always shown a great deal of courtesy to those visiting the ships, and no better way could be taken to show your appreciation than by giving them a rousing reception this evening.

The Queen Pays All Expenses.

The Queen's last "Free Trip to Europe" having excited such universal interest, the publishers of that popular magazine offer another and $200 extra for expenses, to the person sending the largest list of English words constructed from letters contained in the words "British North America." Additional prizes, consisting of Silver Tea Sets, China Dinner Sets, Gold Watches, French Music Boxes, Portiere Curtains, Silk Dresses, Mantel Clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit. A special prize of a Seal Skin Jacket to the lady, and a handsome Shetland Pony to the girl or boy (delivered free in Canada or United States), sending largest lists. Everyone sending a list of not less than twenty words will receive a present. Send four 3c. stamps for complete rules, illustrated catalogue of prizes, and sample number of the Queen.

THE WARDS.

The Present Boundaries of the Three Wards of the City.

Since last civic election a change has been made in the boundaries of the three city wards, and as some confusion may result at the voting on the by-law to-morrow, by voters going to the wrong polling places, we give the present boundaries of the wards:

James Bay Ward.—The northwestern boundary is Fort street from the water front to Cook street, thence along Cook to Belcher street, thence along Belcher street to the city boundary on the east side. All that portion of the city to the south of this boundary is James Bay Ward, and the real estate owners vote at the Hook and Ladder House, Government street.

Yates Street Ward—The northern boundary runs from the water front along Telegraph to Store street, along Store to Fisguard, along Fisguard to Quadra, along Quadra to Frederick, along Frederick to Cook, along Alfred to Chambers, along Chambers to Putnam, along Putnam to city boundary on the east side. Yates Street Ward comprises all that portion of the city to the south of this boundary and north of the James Bay Ward boundary as above described. Voting at Burnes' Building.

Johnson Street Ward—All that portion of the city to the north of the northern boundary of Yates Street Ward as above described. Voting at City Hall.

A WELL APPOINTED STORE.

Messrs. Gilmore & McCandless' New Store on Johnson Street.

Among the many handsome buildings and stores erected this year the one built by Gilmore & McCandless on Johnson street deserves special mention. The building was formerly a one story one and was occupied by H. Saunders. The new owners have added a story and completely renovated the ground flat, which makes the building a very handsome one. The first things that attract attention are the large plates of glass used in the show windows and the brass protecting bars which save them from injury. The windows are large and commodious and are so arranged that goods can be shown to the best advantage. The entrance, also, is wide and conveniently arranged.

The store is 110 by 30 feet, and at first sight one immediately receives the impression that it was built to hold a large stock of goods. The front part of the store is used as a gents' furnishing department, the rear being the tailoring department, while the work room is in a rear building separated from the main one. The kalsomining on the walls and ceiling have been mentioned before, but now that the goods are assorted these decorations show off to better advantage. The rear of the store is lighted by three large skylights in the day time while 50 gas jets and one large electric arc light will turn night into day in one of the best appointed stores in the city. The proprietor's office and the fitting room are between the main store and the tailoring department, and everything is arranged after a true metropolitan style. The proprietors intend to make the front of their premises correspond with the rest, and for that purpose are having an asphalt sidewalk laid down. The work of removing was commenced yesterday, and Gilmore and McCandless will shortly occupy a very handsome store.

THE SNOWY OLYMPICS.

Magnificent Scenery Caught by a Camera—"A Trip in the Mountains.

Mr. Harold Fleming, of the firm of Fleming Bros., returned yesterday from a trip in the Olympics. In company with Mr. Wm. Euller a tour of two weeks has been taken among the mountains across the Straits.

The trip was for hunting and prospecting for prospects. The latter were found and were grand in the extreme. The scenery in that part of the world is almost beyond description, but it has been reproduced by the camera carried by Mr. Fleming. For a week the two gentlemen named, with a guide and pack horse, journeyed along the Elmha river and its tributaries. They penetrated the mountains for 20 miles, and travelled to within a mile or two of the snow line. Game was very scarce, but the absence of it was compensated for by the splendid views obtained. Mr. Fleming will soon have some of the negatives prepared, and as they are the first ever taken in that region, they will be curiosities as well as beautiful pictures.

Port Angeles, the point from which the party started, is reported by them to be going forward rapidly, the march of improvement being very noticeable.

A Beautiful Cup.

A splendid silver cup was to-day placed on view in Davidson Bro's window, which has been made to the order of Messrs. Nicholles & Renouf, who will give it to the winner of the greatest number of prizes at the agricultural exhibition. The cup is two feet in height, silver and gold lined. It stands on two columns beautifully chased, between which is an oxidized silver plow, perfect in every detail, about four inches in length. On top of the cup is a female figure representing a farmer maiden with a rake and wreath. The sides of the cups have shields, one of which will be engraved with the name of the winner, and the other has a farming scene depicted on it. The whole is a most beautiful trophy, the value of which cannot be less that $100. The party who wins it will have a unique and handsome ornament.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

Never Break.

The "Never Break" ware is a new departure in the cooking utensils. This ware is made of beautifully polished steel and will not absorb grease, impart flavor of previously cooked goods, burn before cooking, scale, warp, or crack and "Never Break." They may be seen at mclennan and mcfeely's.

Register Your Vote.

The opponents to a system of sewerage for the city of Victoria will be out in force to vote to-morrow; therefore, let every man and woman who has a vote, and who is desirous of making this Queen City the home of themselves and their families, and one of the most pleasant places to reside in, take an interest in the proposed scheme, and register his or her vote. Don't forget that the carrying out of a system of sewerage will not increase the general taxation on the real estate of this city, but in its expenditure will benefit the working man and through them those engaged in business.

Prepare for Cold Weather.

Cold weather is coming and warmer clothing is quite necessary to preserve health, therefore you should act wise and save a dollar or two by having your last fall's overcoats and suits cleaned and repaired or dyed. Ladies' spring jackets can be dyed and made to look respectable for fall and winter. Bring them now to the Victoria Tailoring and Dying establishment, and avoid disappointment. No. 96 Yates street.

Ald. Browning, at the meeting the Vancouver council this week, very successfully disposed of the World's pamphlet grievance. DON'T DO IT!

DON'T dispute with your Wife, when she says Cameron's goods are the only ones to buy; because she knows what she's talking about.

DON'T argue with her when she says that Cameron's prices are money savers. She talks like a sensible woman who knows what's what.

DON'T try to excuse yourself for going to some other store instead of Cameron's. You know that you can offer no reason that can be sufficient and satisfactory for passing the store where the best and cheapest go together.

DON'T expect your wife to meet you pleasantly, if you've gone to some other store than Cameron's, when she expressly told you to go nowhere else. Don't do any of these things if you expect to live long in the land and keep your hair on.
